

Dr. Harald Atmanspacher is a physicist at the ETH Zürich and also active in the fields of philosophy and psychology. He has had a keen and ongoing interest in Giegerich's work for many years.

He has been a faculty member of the C.G. Jung Institute in Küsnacht, Switzerland since 2004 and is an honorary member of the International Association for Analytical Psychology (IAAP).

He has also been a faculty member of the Parmenides Foundation since 2005 and currently serves as president of the Society for Mind-Matter Research and is editor-in-chief of their interdisciplinary international journal Mind & Matter. He is a fellow of The New Institute's "The Human Condition in the 21st Century."

Dr. Atmanspacher's publications include The Pauli-Jung Conjecture & Its Impact Today (with Christopher Fuchs) and his latest book, Dual-Aspect Monism & the Deep Structure of Meaning (with Dean Rickles), was published this year by Routledge.

Dr. Paul Bishop is the William Jacks Chair of Modern Languages at the University of Glasgow. His books examine the history of ideas, psychoanalysis and analytical psychology with particular emphasis on Nietzsche, C.G. Jung, and Ludwig Klages. His publications include: Jung's Answer to Job: A Commentary, the two volume Analytical Psychology and German Classical Aesthetics: Goethe, Schiller, and Jung, and Reading Goethe at Midlife: Ancient Wisdom, German Classicism, and Jung.

About the latter publication, Wolfgang Giegerich wrote a review, part of which includes: "At a time when many Jungians are turning to neuroscience to provide an external underpinning for Analytical Psychology, this scholarly book is very welcome: it returns to psychology's home territory, placing Jung firmly in a long cultural tradition. Impressively well-read in many fields extending from literature and the history of ideas to psychoanalysis and Jungian studies, Paul Bishop allows a text by Jung and a late poem by Goethe to mirror and enhance each other, demonstrating Jung's intellectual proximity to the tradition of German classicism. The wealth of 'amplifications' that Bishop brings to the many themes treated allows us to experience a living reality—a continuity of ideas across different times and cultures."

We are delighted to have two important and distinguished speakers on the schedule for our Berlin conference. We hope you will be inspired to join us in what will undoubtedly be a stimulating environment from which we will explore our conference topic.
